We are seeking top digital marketers to become an integral part of our European team!

Your responsibilities

- Plan and execute digital marketing campaigns.
- Identify and target audiences.
- Develop and manage website content.
- Develop keywords, web traffic, and market trends to make data-based decisions.
- Manage communications between production and creative teams.
- Analyze reporting, as well as channel insights, to recommend strategic improvements.
- Monitor and analyze the effectiveness of marketing content.
- Collaborate with the sales and management teams to manage user conversion and engagement with the goal of increasing traffic from various channels.
- Collaborate and drive alignment across an array of internal teams (such as development, sales, product management, marketing) to define the appropriate product marketing mix, strategy, and go-to-market activities.
- Measure and internally communicate how your activities support revenue growth and engage customers.

What's on offer?

- An incredible opportunity to expand your network with some of the largest IT service and software providers in the world.
- A diverse and responsible job in a very dynamic environment: You are responsible for complex and exciting tasks and have the opportunity to realize your creative ideas.
- A fantastic team full of energy, with a flat hierarchy and open culture, uncomplicated cooperation, and joy in mutual success.
- You will be given a permanent employment contract, as we value long-term cooperation with our employees.

Your qualifications

- You can identify with customers from the B2B world and would like to work with customers from the IT industry and have a significant impact on these companies
- You already have experience with paid ads and know how to build lead and demand generation campaigns
- You have an absolute growth mindset and feel strongly connected to the start-up mentality
- You want to go above and beyond not only career-wise, but also personally and feel like really stepping on the gas with a great team
- You like to work with numbers and are good in analytical thinking.
- Your communication skills and organizational skills are excellent.
- You are able to translate high volumes of ambiguous or conflicting information into concise insights.
- You are an outstanding strategic problem-solver with a customer-centric mentality.
- We require very good written and spoken English skills. Good French and/or German skills are another plus.

This position is for ambitious marketers who have the desire to advance their careers while contributing to the success of a small but impactful team that works with the top IT service and software providers around the world.
